Letters and papers of Dr Esther Simpson

Special Collections MS 959

These letters and papers were most generously given to the Library mainly in two consignments by Dr Esther Simpson in the session 1990-1. They reflect the many friendships and contacts which she developed in the course of some fifty years' work on behalf of refugee scholars: the collection is thus complementary both to the papers of the Society for the Protection of Science and Learning now preserved in the Bodleian Library, Oxford, and to the papers of the Leeds Academic Assistance Committee preserved in this Library (Leeds MSS 415 and 446).

Esther Simpson was born in Leeds, as Esther Sinovitch, in 1903. She was gifted musically and already had medals and certificates in violin playing from Leeds College of Music before she entered the University of Leeds in 1921. Her correspondence in later years with Max Rostal and his family witnesses to her continued interest in music. She graduated from Leeds with first class honours in French with German in 1924 and took a diploma in education in the following year. As an undergraduate she had studied for a time at Caen, and soon after taking her diploma, she turned from teaching to superior secretarial work in Europe. She was living in Geneva in the fateful year 1933 when she received and accepted an offer of employment in England as secretary to the newly-founded Academic Assistance Council (later, the Society for the Protection of Science and Learning) whose purpose was to help resettle in the free world scholars who had fled from totalitarian regimes, initially Nazi Germany. In the same year she prudently changed her name to the more English-sounding Simpson. Her employment with the AAC developed into a vocation. Many refugee scholars became her personal friends and she followed their subsequent careers closely: many of her 'family' came to occupy professorial chairs throughout the world, others were elected Fellows of the Royal Society and more acquired numerous other distinctions. She was awarded the OBE in 1956 and after her retirement in 1966 she received two honorary doctorates (LID, London, 1984 and Leeds, 1989). Dr Simpson died on 19th November 1996.
