Tony Watts is a leading figure in the field of career development and guidance both nationally and internationally, and he has an outstanding record of academic and policy-oriented research. In this seminar, he will report on three recent and overlapping studies of public policy relating to career guidance, carried out for the OECD, the European Commission and the World Bank. The studies covered some 35 countries in all, and included a strong focus on the relationship between career guidance and lifelong learning.

---

I would like to attend this event
☑ I would like to stay for the buffet reception
☑ Please forward a campus map of the University of Leeds

Please return the slip to: Janet Barton, Lifelong Learning Institute, Continuing Education Building, University of Leeds, Leeds LS2 9JT, telephone 0113 343 3417, or email j.c.barton@leeds.ac.uk before Monday 9 February 2004.